Đà Nẵng flight line: A Chinook helicopter overhead, and I'm not sure what's in the foreground... perhaps an Intruder by the look of the canopy.

Camp Tien Sha: An interesting story on this one. Photo was shot outside of what we, in our gallows humor, called "Arthur Murray's dance studio" which was a SVN hospital for wounded South Vietnamese. We were driving by in a jeep and I leaned out and did a quick shot. I noticed later that it was the wrong exposure and would be grossly overexposed. Sure enough, the neg was almost completely dark. It took a very long exposure in the darkroom to bring out an image, but I got one... and ended up having it published in a few magazines.

A B&W taken at Đà Nẵng AB as we were loading up for the flight to Saigon to catch a Freedom Bird home.

Here's the PX at Gunfighter village... after being hit by a rocket (directly into the liquor section) and boy did it burn.

A B&W of a Jolly Green taking off from Đà Nẵng AB.

Here's a shot of China Sea bay... one without rain...

Đà Nẵng Air Base: Flare drop...
