64) Binh Thuy Air Base Perimeter: This is the actual night-photo of composite #64 above.
The three small white streaks of light, near the drifting parachute flare, is actually a C-47 Spooky landing, with the camera's lens time-exposure streaking its landing lights. Photo by Dennis Hutchings.

65) Binh Thuy Air Base Perimeter: This is a photo taken from approximately the same location as photo #65 above (see the SP Tower, center-horizon, just to right of the paved road). It is a "dusk" composite from the below photo (#67) taken during broad daylight.

66) Binh Thuy Air Base Perimeter: This is the original photo the above composite graphics are based on, and taken during daylight. Note that lights are beginning to come on in expectation of the coming night.
