

Computer graphic art and composites created by Don Poss from photos taken by him during the Vietnam War. Few photographs exist that portray the night illuminated by parachute flares, as every Vietnam Veteran certainly remembers. I offer a collection of scenic photos with an overlay of computer graphics simulating the effects of flare light. You may like the effect, or not. If you were there, you are likely to experience both emotions. It's the way I remember it... I hope, you will say: That's the way it was...
