

A Mortal Sin

© 2004 by Jackie R. Kays

Between darkness and dawn, the mortal limits of terror are shattered, plunging my naked soul to the gates of hell and beyond.

The agonizing pain of my mortal sin, announced loudly by the warlock of the devil's den.

On my knees, for mercy
I plead...take this stone of guilt from my aching heart, which forever
must bleed.

With a mesmerizing stare from his glaring red eyes, that spoke the unadulterated truth without a single lie.

From unmoving lips,
he silent pronounced;
Guilt!

For you are simply a mortal man, and here and now, you admit that you have wasted the gift of time...
Time and time again!

And that my earthly friend,
is an unforgivable mortal sin!